The Museum Of Antique Things

Sandro Asatiani

The Museum of Antique Things

Sandro's Books
www.sandrosbooks.com

This is a museum. Many antique things and mechanisms are kept here.

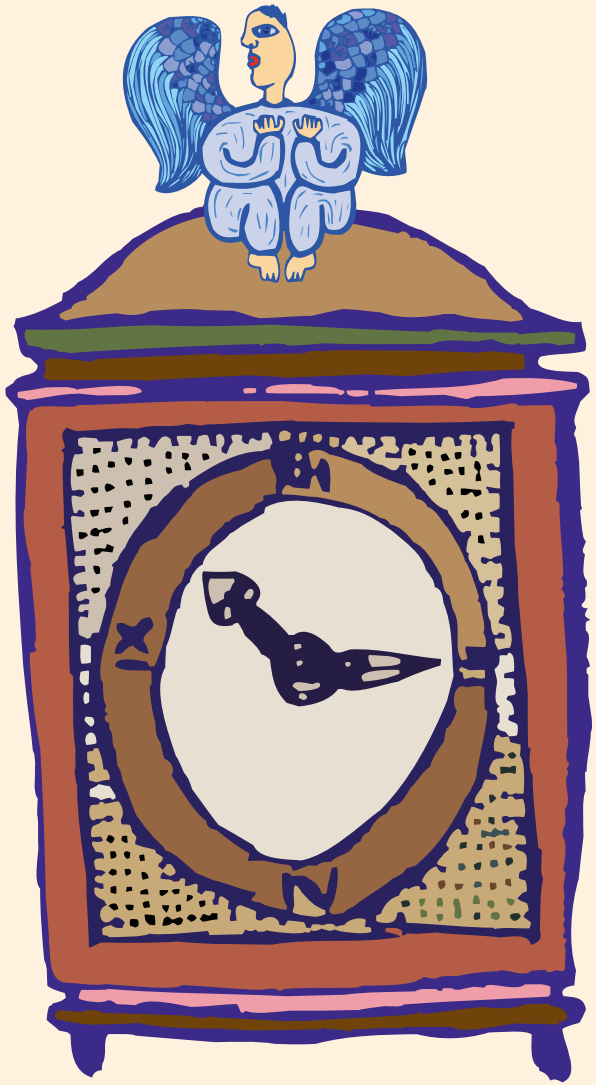

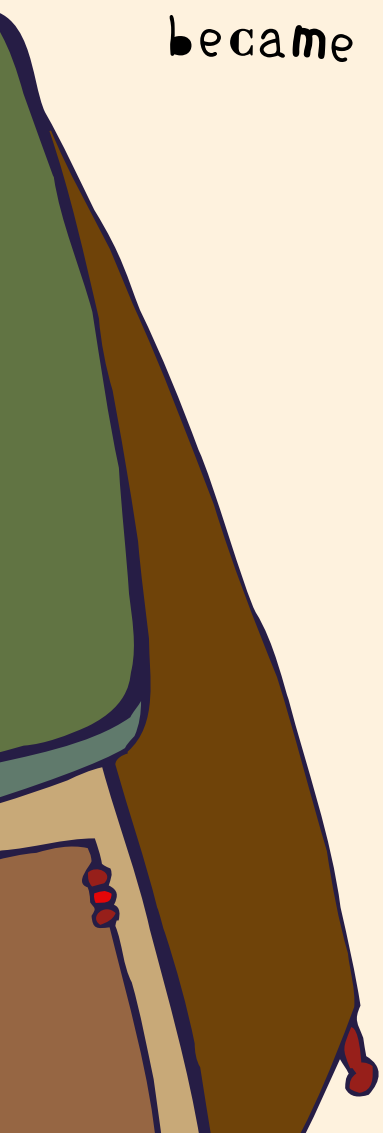

Some time in the past, they were honestly fulfilling their assigned responsibilities. This phone, for example, has said and heard so many silly things that she always keeps quiet now.

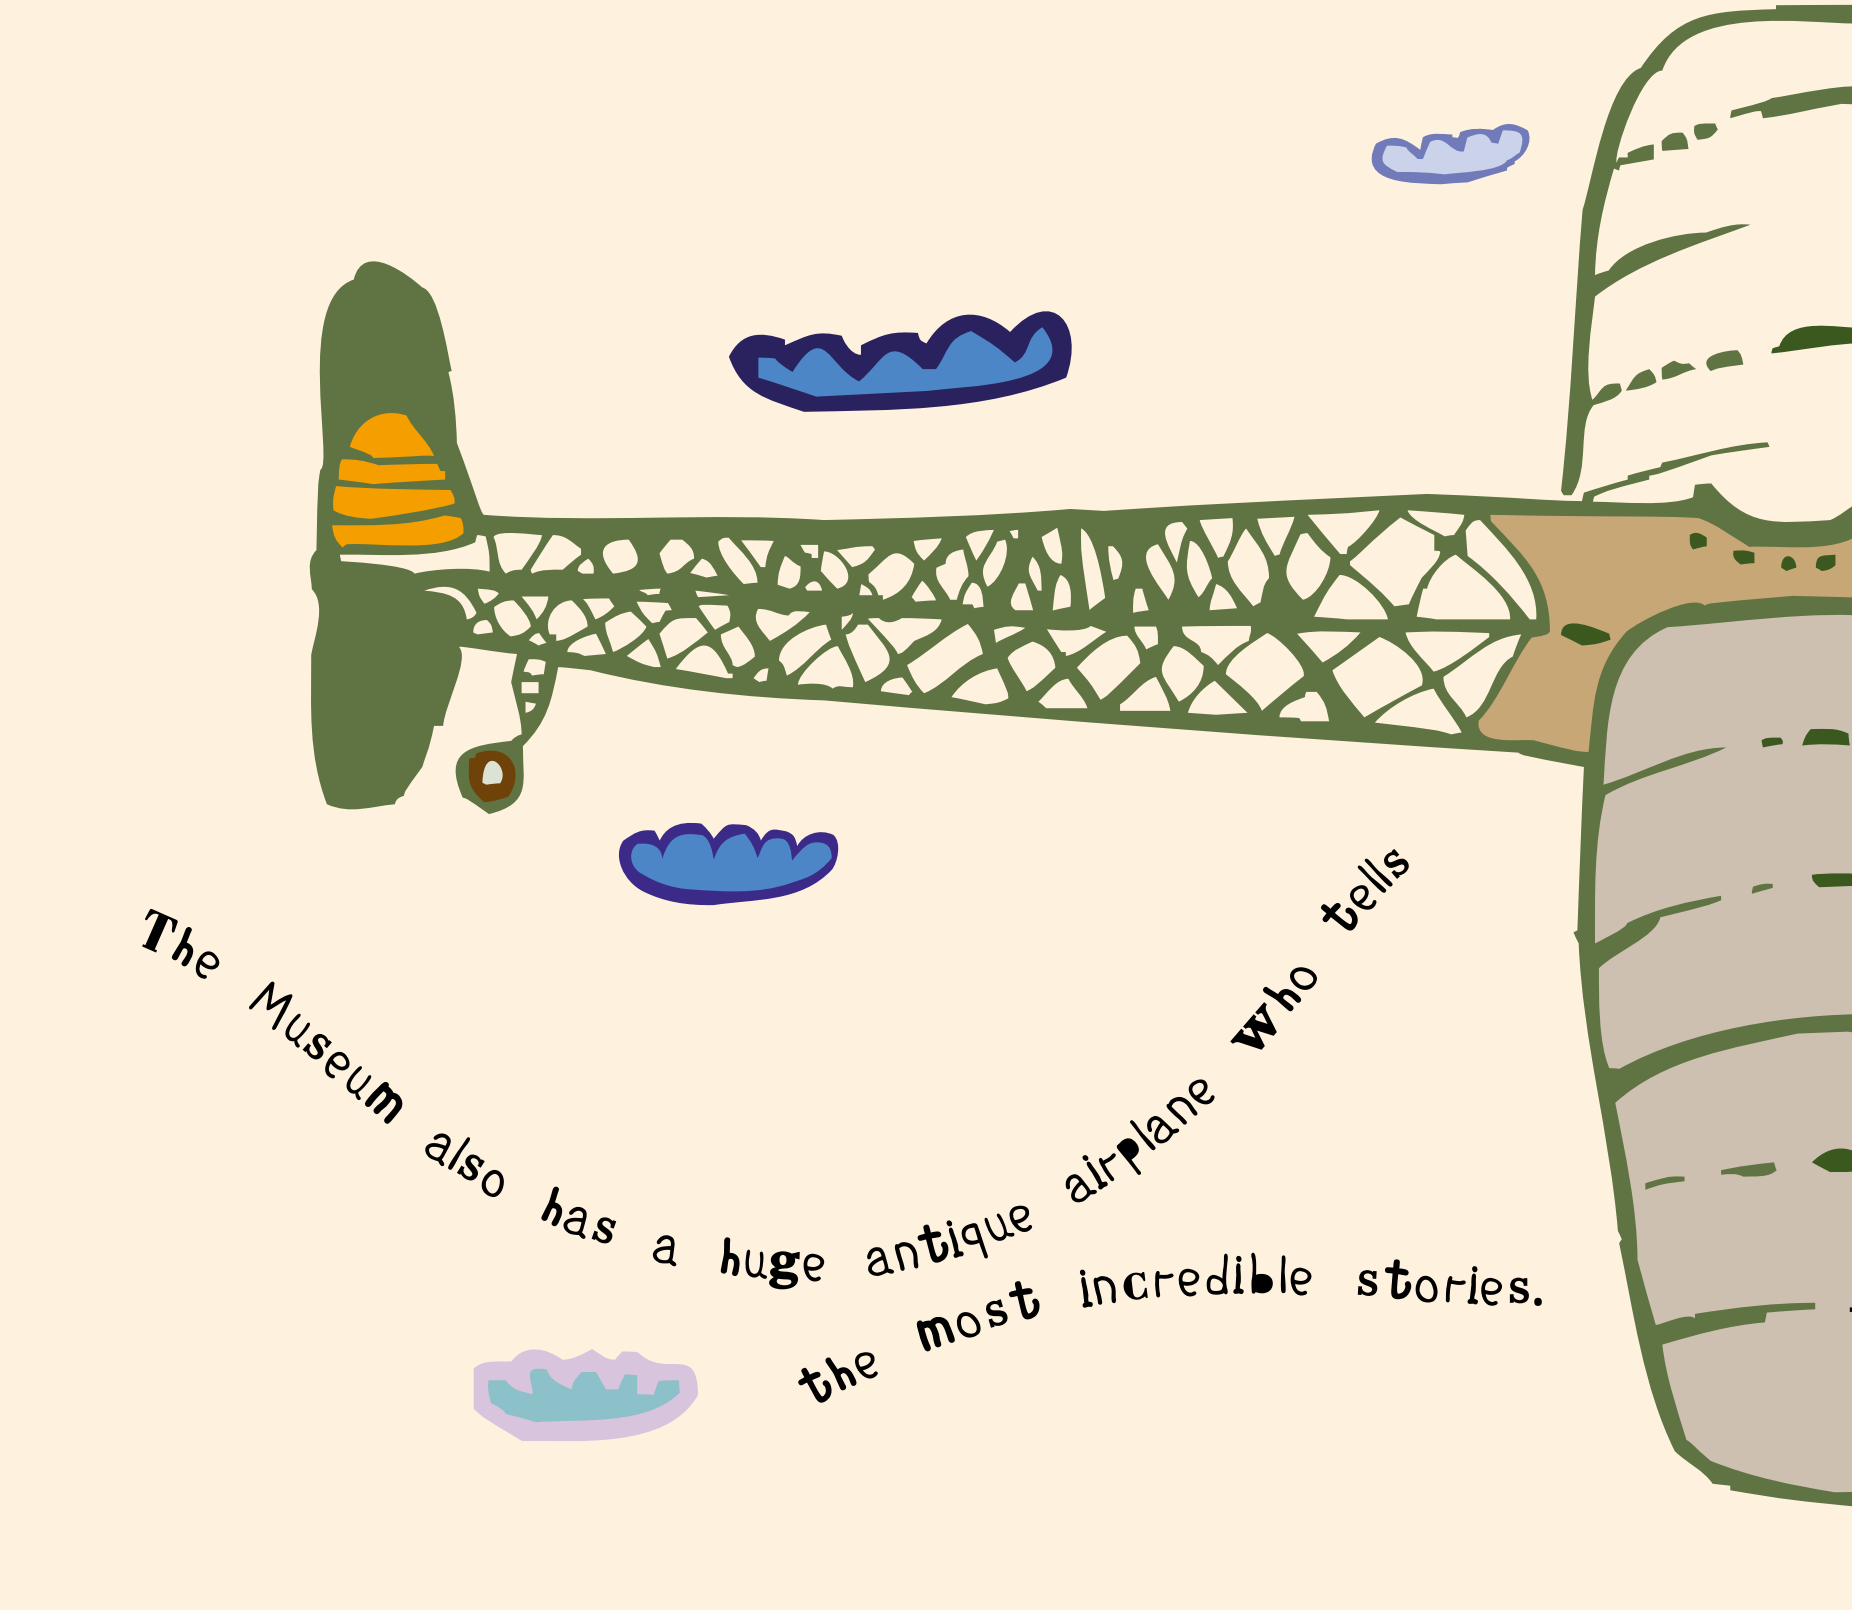

The big antique clock has aged and he became forgetful and slow.

The big Binocular belonged to a general and he used to look over the battlefield fearlessly. Whereas now he tells the stories of his audacities with pride.

The Museum also has a huge antique airplane who tells the most incredible stories.

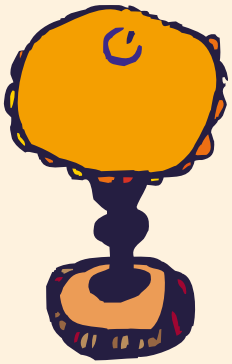

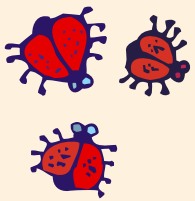

Once, a long time ago, the airplane worked as an airplane and transported people from one place to another. Then everyone forgot about him and he was left all alone.

The airplane flew and flew.
And one day when he was very upset he decided to fly some place where he would have many friends.

The museum was not completely built back then, it didn't even have a roof. The airplane flew in and landed exactly where he is still standing.

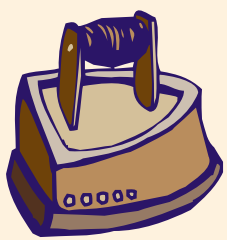

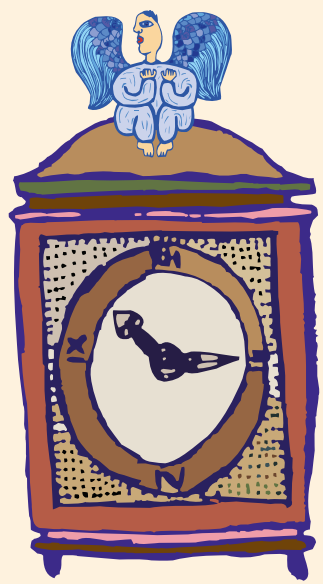

That is how things live in the museum and how they tell each other stories.

Copyright © 2016 by Sandro Asatiani
Tel.: + (995) 595 731313
Mail: info@sandroasatiani.com
www.sandrosbooks.com

Translated by: Mariam Amirejibi-Mullen

Publishing HOUSE
sandro's
BOOKS